

Hopkinsville Kentucky.

FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1893.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM.
ESTABLISHED IN A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Office 13 and 15 South Street.
TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1893.

There was a total eclipse of the sun over in Africa last Sunday.

The revolutionaries are successfully revolutionizing Honduras one of the Central American republics.

The Fifth Congress of the Scotch-Irish Society of America, will meet at Springfield, Ohio, May 11th to 14.

Service's Smart Allocated to me to pretty well qualified to take care of both himself and his little 2 x 4 ing dog.

Logan Cline's paper, the Mayfield Mirror, has joined the mail but very select circle of semi-weekly in the State.

The Superior Court in a case appealed from Hardin county has decided that railroad property is taxable for school purposes.

Braxwell's record of 100 post marks a day was considerably improved last week, some 2000 letters and 800 heads being chopped off in its days.

Mr. Stoll has officially decided that Catholics may join the Knights of Pythias order, in spite of the prohibition against secret societies in general.

The American flag has been hauled down in Hawaii by order of Commissioner Blount and by annexation takes place it will have to be by the people of Hawaii themselves.

The Morgansford Sun has covered their mail with glory by its record of creditable manner of handling the Delaney tragedy in Union county. There is no more interesting newspaper in Kentucky than the Sun.

Moore Glen now knows where he is at and his light shows no signs of going out. His paper of last week contained the following: "The post office was turned over to M. K. Glen, after having been in the hands of a stamp seller extraordinary and licker plimptency of this government to Kentucky."

The National Editors Association will meet at Chicago May 16. Kentucky members to be determined by the following gentlemen have been appointed: Harry McCarty, Jessamine Journal; Sam W. Compton, Madisonville Herald; L. W. Williams, Louisville Times. If either of these gentlemen is unable to attend, he is authorized to designate his own alternate.

King Alexander, the seventeen year old ruler of Serbia, who has governed the country through regents since his father, King Milan, was deposed, last week arrested the regents and assumed the government of the kingdom in his own person. He has since been loyal to the King and the changes made with out bloodshed. The people are content with the change.

Louisville has come to the front with another double tragedy in fallen circles. W. Irving Gillis, a degenerate scion of a respectable family, and Lizzie Krenner, a woman of the class, were each others in a cheap lodging house from where they were taken by the police in a drunken stupor, which both drank heavily. They were dead several hours when their bodies were found lying in death.

"A Lying Noddy" and "A Negro Ringer" have been appearing in the Louisville Commercial and Lexington Leader last week, referring to assaults upon white women by negro rapists. These papers are the principle Republican newspapers of Kentucky, which fact should be borne in mind by northern critics, who love so much to talk about the "southern outrages" that usually follow such crimes.

Out of 31 postoffices in Christian county, last half a dozen have been taken over by Republicans. This is largely owing to the fact that the county stores where these offices are situated are run by Democrats.

The offices at Hopkinsville, Crofton, Pembroke and Fairview, (on the line between Kentucky and Tennessee) have been taken over by Democrats. One or two of these offices were not large enough to contain more than one or two clerks. One was at Fairview, which will be filled at an early date.

Last week the Glasgow Times arranged for John Jones to read a committee of ladies disapprovingly when they waited upon him at Hotel of Kentucky, which fact should be borne in mind by northern critics, who love so much to talk about the "southern outrages" that usually follow such crimes.

ZENO P. YOUNG

Survived by Father, Mother and Sister.

DEATH, ALA., April 15.—Zeno P. Young, of Madisonville, Ky., who had been doing newspaper work here since he was found dead in his bed by two empty morphine boxes lying near by him. Failure to make a living for his family destroyed him to commit this rash act. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Ohio Followers.

Zeno Young was a native of Madisonville, Ky., and was connected with one of the best families of that place. He was in the Union army when quite a boy. Afterward he became the editor of the Madisonville Times, and made it one of the best country papers of the State. He was one of the popular members of the Kentucky Press Association. In the summer of 1884 he met with a terrible accident, falling from his office window, three stories from the ground, upon a brick pavement. He was severely injured and crushed in the chest, having both arms broken, his jawbone fractured and one ankle dislocated or sprained.

For a long time he hovered between life and death and all that he had accomplished was to consume the wealth and loss of time. During the Sheffield boom excitement of a few years back he was one of the most successful men in the city. He went into the coal business. He shifted from place to place, and finally ended up at Beatty, where he was killed by a coal mine.

He was twice married and his son, Morgan Young, by his first wife, was a prominent man. His second wife was a Miss Turner, and he leaves several small children by her. His brother, Walter M. Young, was one of the several members of the Owensboro Messenger office, being now associated on the Sunday Times, at Louisville.

Up to the time he sold his paper at Madisonville Zeno Young was one of the best known newspaper men in the State. He was a writer of great vigor and aggressiveness. Personally he was without fear and his paper was one of the most fearless in the State. He was a writer of great vigor and aggressiveness. Personally he was without fear and his paper was one of the most fearless in the State.

He was a Democratic candidate for the State Senate in 1888 but was defeated by H. B. Lombard, the Republican. From the time of his accident in 1884 his condition seemed to grow worse and worse until he died. He was a man of great energy and an old habit of his early life which he had controlled for many years, manifested itself and he sought to draw his troubles in the cup.

For several years he battled with evil forces, returning to the printer's shop and to his last breath then gave up the struggle. He was too proud to return to his old home and seek work from him who had known and loved him. He was too proud to return to his old home and seek work from him who had known and loved him.

A Growing Business.

Another indication of the growing business of Hopkinsville is shown by the steady and substantial increase in the revenue of the postoffice.

In the last few years the revenue has justified an increase of the postmaster's salary from $1,700 to $1,800 and at the close of the year's business on March 31 the revenue of the office was shown to be $7,975.50, within less than $25 of the amount necessary to put the office into the second class and increase the salary to $2,000.

One delay order, placed in January, would have raised the amount above the necessary figures, but this order was postponed for some unknown reason.

Postmaster Beahm had no idea the figures had increased so largely until he figured up his quarterly reports.

The salaries are readjusted July 1 on the showing made above and now the figures will not be increased until next year. It is safe to say however that by the time a new term begins, say, 25, 1894, the office will be paying $2,000 a year. Hopkinsville is a rapidly growing city and its bright and most prosperous days are just ahead.

School Discipline.

This is the rock on which teachers split. It may be briefly defined as an arbitrary system of controlling the activities of children. In the minds of many, discipline, both in the family and in school, consists solely of com-

The discipline of an army seems to be the generally accepted model of school government. Now there are no two things more unlike in purpose and object than an army and a school. The army is a mere machine, constructed for the sole purpose of being controlled by the will of its commander. In the discipline of an army there is no thought of, discussion an army is a splendid place to have absolute obedience. Where this idea originated I am unable to say. It seems to me to be very erroneous, but it has dominated the world since the dawn of history and yet we have a far better example of its untruth in the person of the first great general of antiquity. Alexander was a notoriously disobedient son, and if he had not been so the modern world would never have been what it is.

The purpose of the school on either hand is to make independent living, self controlling men and women. The purposes are almost contradictorily opposite.

Requires what is there in obedience which can possibly teach one to be a man! Nothing. Faith in the value of obedience is lost in proportion to the loss of faith in the justness or the value of command. From a human standpoint, disobedience seems to be the source of all improvement. Command and obedience are conservative, opposing all change and would prevent all advancement. Disobedience disrupts the inflexible laws of right or wrong and opens the way for progress.

Where would now be Protestantism if Huse, Zwingli, Luther and Melancthon had been obedient to the powers that then existed, and would be this glorious Republic if the colonists had been submissive to the will of George III.

These two forces, command and disobedience, are two antagonistic

h physical' world; if the one should prevail all things would come to a stationary central point, if the other there would be a distraction of order and chaos would reign.

Of course in our present imperfect state of society command and obedience must exist; but parents and teachers should command cautiously and sparingly, never unless it is absolutely necessary, but when that
